About D'Artagnan

Our pretty gites just across the lawn from the pool are named after the Musketeers - D'Artagnan, Aramis, Porthos and Athos who all came from this area.

D'Artagnan is like a small house with more than ample room for its 4-5 occupants with its particular feature, a lattice work of original beams dating from 1801.

The upstairs bedroom is a twin bedroom with ancient beams and with en-suite facilities including a small bath.

At the top of the stairs is a mezzanine with private sitting area and a double bed settee.

On the ground floor, a spacious living-area with a kitchen, a bright double bedroom and a bathroom with shower room, washbasin and wc.

The gites contain all the essentials for a self-catering holiday including linen, and towels and a complimentary "welcome pack" with some groceries and wine, which we provide to get you off to the easiest of starts.

Each gite has satellite TV/Radio and receives multiple stations including all BBC and ITV channels. A library of English, French books and board games are also provided in each. Outside, the gites have private patios with tables and chairs.

They are surrounded by Lassenat's lawns, which includes the heated pool with its shower. The pool area is a natural suntrap perfect for getting that golden tan.

For al fresco dining, the Barbecue area is a matter of yards away, as is the Boules pitch, the scene of many competitive after dinner challenges.
